SUBJECT: Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence

Dr. Stephen Cambone has assumed duties as the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence. In this position, he will be my principal assistant regarding intelligence and, at my direction, will exercise authority, direction, and control over intelligence and intelligence-related activities within the Department of Defense. He will serve as the single point of contact within the Department for other government agencies on intelligence matters.

I will remain the principal interface within the Department of Defense for the Director of Central Intelligence, and this memorandum does not alter relationships between the defense components of the National Foreign Intelligence Program and the DCI.

The Director of Administration and Management and other cognizant officials shall take the organizational and administrative actions necessary to implement this direction. The Deputy Secretary will issue more specific implementation guidance.
