

Gene McAuliffe
Jim Soldow

July 23, 1974

To be ready for a future crisis, I think we ought to make sure that this Mission is organized in a way that the man who heads up our sitcenter is permanently cleared for survey and CIA material. It is very awkward if the man who is pulling together the information for daily, indeed two or three times a day, briefings of the two or three senior people in the Mission, doesn't have access to the bulk of the intelligence information. It makes him far less effective. So we ought to talk about how this should be done for the future.

DR

